Welcome to My

VEGETABLE GARDENING Diary!

Every great garden begins with a tiny seed—and every successful gardener learns by watching, measuring, and keeping notes.

This diary is your own personal garden journal. As your vegetables grow, you'll record what you planted, when you planted it, how your garden changed, and what you learned along the way. Even experienced gardeners keep journals because every growing season is a little different.

There are no right or wrong answers. Your observations will help you become a better gardener each year.

How to Use This Diary

Use one page for each garden, planting bed, or growing season.

Write neatly, add sketches, and have fun!

You may also tape photographs, seed packets, or plant tags onto the pages if you would like.

Things You May Want to Record

- | | | |
|---|---|--|
| ☐ Date planted | ☐ How often you watered | ☐ How tall your plants became |
| ☐ Vegetable variety | ☐ Fertilizer or compost added | ☐ Number of vegetables harvested |
| ☐ Where it was planted | ☐ Insects you noticed | ☐ Flavor and quality of the harvest |
| ☐ Weather conditions | ☐ Helpful insects such as bees, butterflies, or ladybugs | ☐ What worked well |
| ☐ First sprouts appeared | ☐ Diseases or plant problems | ☐ What you would do differently next year |
| ☐ First flowers appeared | ☐ Companion plants growing nearby | |
| ☐ First harvest | | |

Garden Tip

A garden journal is one of the best gardening tools you can own. After a few seasons, your notes become a valuable guide that helps you grow healthier plants, harvest more vegetables, and solve problems before they happen.

*Plant a seed today...
and grow a lifetime of gardening memories!*
